PRINCESS PAT VETERAN COMES TO GLENDALE TO MAKE HIS FUTURE HOME

Represents the Associated Oil Company in the Local Field After Recovering From War

TELLS OF EUROPEAN BATTLEFIELDS

Decorated Repeatedly, He Tells Story of Slaughter in the World War From Point of Eyewitness

By ALBERT MARPLE

L. A. De Young, formerly a member of the famous "Princess Pat" regiment which went over to Europe immediately after the beginning of the war and was the first aggregation to be subjected to a gas attack, has moved to Glendale and is living at 720 North Louise street. He is now a real, full-fledged 100% Glendalian. Mr. and Mrs. De Young moved here about two weeks ago.

Mr. De Young came to Southern California as a representative of the Associated Oil company, his jurisdiction taking in Glendale, Burbank, Los Angeles, Eagle Rock, Pasadena, Hollywood and San Fernando.

One of the requisites for membership in the Princess Pat regiment, says Mr. De Young, was that the applicant should be over 6 feet tall and should weigh at least 200 pounds.

He was wounded a number of times, but on each occasion managed to pull through. On one occasion six machine gun bullets shattered the bone of his right leg. He had experiences of every kind, and saw everything there was to be seen in the way of fighting, and out of it all he came with a smile that remains unmovable.

While over on the other side, Mr. De Young secured a whole basketful of medals, among which are the "Legion of Honor," "The Medal Militarie," the 'C'roix de Guerre, and the "Belgian War Cross," all of which were given for conspicuous bravery. He exhibited to one of the Glendale Press staff, original citations from General Petain of the French army, conferring on him the "Medal Militaire." This was conferred upon Mr. De Young for smashing a German machine gun and bringing in eight German prisoners sigle handed.

The Belgian war cross was awarded for carrying a dispatch across No Man's Land, which act prevented a surprise attack from the enemy, which would have resulted disastrously.

After discussing several features in conection with the fighting on the other side of the pond, Mr. De Young said:

"It was at Antwerp that I saw the effect of the fire of the Big Bertha. Antwerp was strongly fortified. One of its forts had four large disappearing guns and was considered impregnable. From a position in a soap factory I saw one shell from a German 42 centimeter come over and register a hit on the fortifications. The fort simply sank out of sight. As the shell came over it breezed past a large oak tree. That tree came down like a straw. Although it was untouched the suction was so great that it was unable to stand.

"From Antwerp we went to Ghent, where we met the London Scottish troops and the Punjahbes Britain had 150,000 troops over at the time and of that number 70,000 were Hindus. The slaughter of the latter was something awful.

"We could make no stand at Ghent and so the Scottish were sent to Mons and Chareroi, while the foreign legion, of which I was a member, went with the Belgian army to Bruges for the Belgians were then determined to hold the line and prevent the Germans from coming through. Those were the days of no food and little ammunition. We went for two and three days with no food, except the scraps of bread picked up at deserted tables, from which refugees fled.

"In Bruges I saw the French Zouaves colonial troops shoot down a pig and in less time than it takes to tell it, that animal was consumed by the hunger-siezed Zouaves.

"All wires through to Ostend were cut and we could not get communication. I was a sergeant and I volunteered to drive a 60-horsepower Minerva car, Belgian make, through Blankenberg to Ostend. Two privates were assigned to accompany me. The highway was macadamized and we bowled along at a lively rate. About 16 kilos outside of Ostend the men in the back of the machine who were sweeping the country with field glasses to make sure that we did not run into a trap, reported suspicious looking characters in the field off to the right.

"We slowed down and as we approached they reported that the men were soldiers and that they wore spikes on their helmets. We debated what to do and finally decited to investigate. We left our car behind a tree near a farm house and crept into the dwelling. Not 300 yards away we could see several Uhlans silhoutted against the sky, while nearer we discerned five men, three of them officers, coming toward the farm house.

"We had to make our decision quickly. I stationed myself inside by the door. One of the boys took a stand around the opposite corner of the house, while the third hid behind a manure pile at the barn. Things worked out exactly as we planned. The group divided, going in different directions to search the place. One of the officers, a major, stuck his head into the dining room and I brought my revolver up under his chin with such suddenness that it almost took his breath away.

"'One move and you're dead,' I said. 'This place is full of men. We have a machine gun upstairs trained on your lines. Do as I say and you will be all right.'

"'I understand,' he said.

"I backed him into a corner and faced him toward the wall and bound his hands behind him with a window curtain. Then I ran out and found that each of the other two men stood up at the point of a gun. We rushed them inside and fixed them up like I had the major. We learned that they were a part of Von Gluck's army, and that the main army of 300,000 men on the way to Paris had turned aside and was marching on Ostend.

"While we were still questioning our prisoners we heard shots. We rushed outside to our auto, leaving the men in the house. I stepped on the throttle, for other Germans had come over. They began shooting at us. Down the road ahead we found they had thrown a patrol across the highway. I had copped the major's spiked helmet and had slipped it on while the two other fellows lay low in the back of the machine.

"There was nothing to do but try the rush act. I stood up as much as possible, gave a wave of my hand as though I was some important German officer who wanted the road and we shot through. They soon saw my uniform and opened up on us with their guns, but it was a case of "gee whiz" and we were a mile away.

"We got through to Ostend with the information we had gained That's why we got the Croix de Guerre and a letter of congratulation from King Albert.

De Young tells of the first cloud of gas that came over from the German lines:

"I was at Ypres on the morning that the heavy mist cloud was seen rolling over the best fields. We always had mist in the morning, but that was heavier than usual. The Princess Pats conceived the idea of charging the Germans in bayonet attack under cover of the mist. The Legion of Honor, the French Zouaves and the Dublin Fusileers were supporting them in the charge. We did not know that that cloud of mist was deadly. It was centered on the Canadians. The Zouaves got their first whiffs of gas and fled, but the Princess Pats, although many of them fell gasping, pushed on. The Foreign Legion was just at the edge of the gas, so few of us were affected. I happened to be one of the unlucky ones. There were 960 Canadians in that attack. Nineteen came out untouched. Eighty recovered, but suffered after effects. The Canadians are wonderful fighters. They are equal to the American soldier.

"When the American army reached France I applied for admission to Uncle Sam's forces, but the doctors wouldn't pass me because my right lung was affected and my right eye was partially paralyzed as a result of being gassed at Ypres.

"There was no hope of getting into the combat troops, so I enlisted in the quartermaster's corps determined to keep transferring until they lost track of my medical record and landed me in a combat outfit. I was transferred to Camp Green, North Carolina, shipped to Camp Mills, and transferred to the transport division. I finally landed in the tank corps and won a commission.

"One night near Soissons a fleet of twenty-four whippet tanks was ordered across No Man's Land, to make way for the infantry. We got into No Man's Land and a German 77 shell exploded under the front end of our tank. It stood us up on end. The two of us opened the turret, crawled out and pussy-footed back to our lines as fast as they would let us. After that we spent two weeks in the trenches with the infantry."

De Young transferred to the infantry and secured the rank of a sergeant. He was at Chateau Thierry and at St. Mihiel. It was at the latter place that he won the Belgian War Cross.

HANCOCK XMAS DANCE ENJOYED

The Hancock Christmas dance at the Women's Club of Eagle Rock was attended by a jolly crowd of Eagle Rock young people Friday night. Though there was the will to dance the old fashioned dances, there didn't seem to be anyone there to lead them, and so the modern fox trots, waltzes, and one-steps prevailed. Excellent music was furnished by a number of local artists.

DAVID TITLE IS WANTED IN EAGLE ROCK COURT

Charged With Traveling at Rate of 47 Miles An Hour

A bench warrant was issued Saturday at Eagle Rock for David Title, manager of a branch store of the Platt Music company of Los Angeles, who was arrested last week for driving at 47 miles an hour, and who was to face a charge of reckless driving in court Saturday.

When Title was arrested he had two of his children with him, so officers allowed him to deposit $50 bail, and ordered him to appear today. When he failed to arrive, Judge Cruzan stated that he would forfeit bail, and ordered the officers to get him on a bench warrant, as he said there was no reason why motorists should think that they could drive 47 miles an hour through Eagle Rock.

L. Singleton, representative of the Southern California Edison company of Hanford, California, answered to a charge of driving on the left hand side of the street and not having an operator's license in his possession. He plead guilty to both charges and left $10 with the court, Judge Cruzan warning him that if he were to figure in an accident while driving on the left hand side of the street, he would have no chance in the world of collecting damages, as the court would rule that his violation of the state motor vehicle act was contributory evidence in the case.

Button cutters must pay the court $5, so ruled Judge Cruzan in the case of C. B. Morgan who failed to mind the silent policeman marking the intersection at Eagle Rock Road and Colorado boulevard.

Jane Linde, leading lady of the Raymond Theatre of Pasadena, failed to appear in answer to the charge of 31 miles an hour against her. The court will probably send her a letter to remind her of the court's orders.

MACHINES BUMP RADIATORS AT FLAG POLE

Protectors Save Autos and Drivers From Much Damage

Two machines locked bumpers at noon Saturday, as the turn was made around the flag pole at the intersection of Colorado and Central, Eagle Rock.

Mrs. P. S. Witcher of Harvard Circle was making the turn to go south on Central, and Frank W. Trost of 306 E. Windsor, Glendale, driving just back of her, ran into the rear of her machine. Stout bumpers on both machines prevented any serious damage to either car, though the bumper on Trost's machine came off, and the rear bumper of the Witcher machine was badly bent, but not broken.

We Greet You

WITH A MERRY, MERRY CHRISTMAS, THE GLENDALE DAILY PRESS GREETS ITS MORE THAN FIVE THOUSAND SUBSCRIBERS TODAY, MUCH IN THE HAPPY, FRIVOLOUS MOOD OF THE YOUNGSTER YOU MET, OR SHOULD HAVE MET, THIS MORNING, 'ABOUT YOUR CHRISTMAS TREE.

WE THANK YOU.

NEWS OF BURBANK

CHURCHES CELEBRATE THE BIRTHDAY OF THE KING

Last Friday evening all the churches in Burbank were gay with Christmas cheer.

At the First Methodist the entertainment was given by the little tots and was enjoyed greatly by all present.

The Presbyterian church was crowded. The orchestra, led by Verne Isom, opened the concert. There were numbers by the primary classes, under Mrs. Russell Wickersham, which were very clever.

Miss Harriet Valentine, Burbank's sweet little singer, rendered several selections. Her voice is soft and wonderfully sweet, showing training of the highest type.

The Sunday school presented Verne Ison with a substantial check in appreciation of his services. Miss Grace Reid made the presentation and Mr. Isom responded.

Gifts of fruit and toys were sent to the Forsythe Memorial School for Mexican girls in Los Angeles. A cash offering of $45.00 was sent to the San Selmo Orphanage.

NEW PROCESS FOR PHOTO PLATES TRIED OUT IN BURBANK PLANT

M. R. Leonard of Los Angeles, who has been a photographer in commercial work and for th movies, has just applied for a patent on a special type of photo plate which will print a picture the outline of which will stand out in relief.

He claims that all moving pictures taken by his process will appear as though one were looking through a stereoscope.

His process makes it possible to reproduce on tile or marble, pictures in relief of ancient architecture. A part of the process requires scientific dehydration which was successfully tried out in the Genevieve Jackson plant of this city.

We wish Mr. Leonard great success in his endeavor.

MR. AND MRS. BARNUM IN PALMER, KANSAS

Mr. and Mrs. Barnum have rented their home in Burbank and are in Palmer, Kansas. Mrs. Barnum's father is ill and they intend to stay near him.

Burbank misses these good people and our best wishes go to them for a prosperous and happy New Year.

BURBANK POST OFFICE DOUBLES BUSINESS

Mr. Coffman, our esteemed postmaster, wishes to thank the friends who have so kindly helped him to handle the great burden of Christmas mail. Mr. Colburn of the Burbank Chamber of Commerce has been of great help and every citizen of this city should be proud of such a public spirited man. The amount of insured outgoing mail shows an increase of fifty per cent over last year.

NOT A WOMAN ON PARK COMMITTEE

At a banquet given at the Elizabeth a few evenings ago seven men were elected to arrange for a park in Burbank. We women think that every committee formed for the betterment and enlightenment of Burbank should be made up of both men and women. Let us ask that at least three of those seven men resign and three women be appointed in their place.

MISS GRACE HARDING WINS LOVELY DOLL

For some time past Mr. Mulvey has been giving out tickets with every twenty-five cent purchase. Each ticket bore the name of a girl. Friday evening the store was filled with a merry crowd awaiting the drawing of the lucky name.

When "Merle" was called, Miss Harding stepped up and received the beautiful twenty dollar doll.

ENTERTAIN KIDDIES WITH CHRISTMAS TREE

Mrs. Clark had a Christmas tree for the little tots Christmas morning. In the evening she will have as dinner guests Mr. and Mrs. Earl McNutt and Mr. and Mrs. Thompson and family.

NO UNWILLING GUESTS FOR CHRISTMAS

Our jail has no occupant at present and we hope it will not have one during our Christmas merry-making.

NEW CLOCK FOR POSTOFFICE CHRISTMAS GIFT TO BURBANK

Dr. V. P. Ervin has given a clock to our postoffice. Now we can have the time of our lives. Thank you, Dr. Ervin. Every time we look at it we will think of you.

FIRST COMMUNITY SERVICE TO BE THE GREATEST EVENT OF ITS KIND IN THE CITY'S HISTORY

Organizations Aligned for the Program of This Evening Show the Big Demonstration of the Get-together Spirit Will Be Great Success

By CORINNE ORFF

The largest Christmas celebration ever to be held in Glendale, with all sections of the city represented, will begin at 7:30 o'clock tonight, when Glendale's first big Community Christmas program will be staged at the high school grounds. This will be the beginning of a series of big programs to be "put over" by Glendale Community Service. Colonel James W. Everington is general chairman in charge of the Christmas celebration. A splendid musical program of carols and other numbers has been arranged by Mrs. W. Q. Widdows, chairman of the program committee, and will be staged tonight under the direction of Harry Girard.

A forty foot Christmas tree, growing in front of the administration building of Glendale Union high school has been decorated under the direction of L. W. Chobe, assisted by members of the Glendale fire department. Topping the tree is a large star, which will be electrically lighted. There will also be colored lights all over the tree.

Santa Claus and his brothers will all be present to distribute 3000 bags of candy to the little folks. A platform has been constructed in front of the school building by the Exchange club, lumber being donated by Bentley-Schoeneman, and there will be a screen on which words of some of the Christmas carols to be sung by the public will be thrown. The Shuck Music company is furnishing a piano to be used by the high school orchestra, which, under the direction of Mrs. Dora Gibson, will play the accompaniment for the Christmas carols. Alexander Stewart, Pacific coast music organizer for National Community Service, will lead the carols in which the general public will participate. David Black was chairman of the committee on supplies, which looked after the securing of the candy and so forth. H. F. Benner has been publicity chairman for this big feature of Glendale Community Service.

The detailed program for the celebration at the high school tonight at 7:30 o'clock, follows:

High school orchestra—"Largo" (Handel) and "Nazareth," (Gounod), Mrs. Dora L. Gibson, leader.

2.
Men's Clubs of Glendale and choir of Holy Family Catholic church. "God Rest You, Merry Gentlemen," "O, Come All Ye Faithful," Harry Girard, leader.

3.
School children from first and second grades. "Wonderful Tree," "God Bless the Master of This House," "Ring Out Sweet Bells," leaders, Miss Elsie Brenneman and Mrs. Kent.

4.
Carols by the people, "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," "Hark the Herald Angels Sing"; leader, Alexander Stewart, Pacific Coast music organizer for National Community Service.

5.
Choir of First Christian church, "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks"; leader, Mrs. Edgar L. Smith.

6.
Boys' Glee club of the high school. "We Three Kings of Orient Are"; leader, Mrs. C. A. Parker.

7.
Quartet, First Presbyterian church, "Coronation;" leader, Mrs. Fannie Marple Retts.

8.
Carol by the people, "Joy to the World"; leader, Mr. Stewart.

9.
School children of third and fourth grades, "Old French Noel," "From the Starry Heavens High"; leader, Miss Brenneman.

10.
Solo, "Cantique De Noel," Spencer Robinson.

11.
Madrigal club and Episcopal choir. "While By My Sheep," (Christmas hymn of 17th century, arr. by Max Spicker); leader, Mrs. C. A. Parker.

12.
Choir Congregational church, "Nativity"; leader, Howard F. Cavanah.

13.
School children of the fifth and sixth grades, "The Three Kings," "In the Little Village of Bethlehem"; leader, Mrs. Kent.

14.
Choir from Central Avenue Methodist, "The Christmas Song," Dr. Joseph Marple, leader.

15.
Girls' Glee club of high school, "The First Noel," "What Child Is This"; leader, Mrs. Parker.

16.
School children of seventh and eighth grades, "Deck the Hall"; leader, Mrs. Kent.

17.
Choir, First Methodist church, "Silent Night"; leader, Miss Isabel Isgrigg.

18.
Flag tableau by American Legion and Boy Scouts.

19.
"America," by the people.

The Very Latest About Community Christmas Exercises

That the confusion regarding the hour for the opening of the Community Christmas exercises this evening, due to different announcements, may be cleared up, Don Orput wishes the Daily Press to state that the program will open promptly at 7:30 o'clock. Members of the Kiwanis, Rotary, Exchange and other men's clubs, if there be any, and of the choir of Holy Family Catholic Church, who are to sing in the grand chorus under the leadership of Harry Girard, are to meet at SEVEN O'CLOCK SHARP in the High School Auditorium. All others who are to have a part in the program are expected to go into the building as soon as they arrive so they can be arranged in the proper groups. Remember, the program opens at 7:30 o'clock.

XMAS FESTIVAL ENTOUR TO BE STAGED

Harrison and Lennox Families to Share the Honors of the Day

Christmas is a prolonged festival for members of the M. P. Harrison and Lennox families. It will begin with a Christmas breakfast at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Lennox on Pacific Avenue at which covers will be laid for the Harrison and Lennox relatives and at noon they will assemble at the M. P. Harrison residence, 323 N. Maryland, for a big Christmas dinner to be followed by an afternoon of games and music and an evening lunch. The guest list will include the father and sister of the hostess, H. C. Brown and Dr. Laura Brown, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Lennox and son, John Harrison Lennox; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Forbes and son, Martin; E. H. Brown, his daughter and son, Gertrude, and Harold Brown of Van Nuys; Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Andrews, their daughter, Lucille, and son, Ralph, from Whittier; Henry Brown, from Montebello; Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Lennox from San Francisco.

The Harrison home is decked with Christmas greens and holly with a tree for the center of interest, and Christmas colors will feature the dinner appointments.

Miss Irene Harrison arrived from Whittier Friday night and will spend the Christmas holidays at home.

P.-T. A. DOLL SHOP OF EAGLE ROCK CLOSES

Stock Is Removed on Saturday From Holiday Shop

Mrs. Charles Wentworth and her assistants at the P.-T. A. Doll Shop of Eagle Rock were busy Saturday afternoon moving the remainder of the stock at the shop and selling out as far as possible on the Christmas goods.

The doll who was not claimed all last week was won through the raffling at the Central School Friday night by Mrs. F. F. Parker, of West Palm avenue. Mrs. L. Bannister won Noreen, the pink dressed doll.

Number 2 is the lucky number for the French pin cushion, and number 10 for the erector set. Neither of the latter were claimed at the picture show.

MRS. WARNER GIVES DINNER AND DANCE

A real old-fashioned dinner with turkey, mince pie and plum pudding and everything will be served to the house guests and a number of out of town friends by Mrs. Warner at her home on Orange Grove Avenue. Those from out of town are Mr. and Mrs. Leeming and family of Compton, Mr. and Mrs. Fleming from Downey, Mr. and Mrs. Hettinger and Mr. Southwick of Los Angeles. A dance will follow the dinner and a tree with presents for all.

ASSOCIATED OIL COMPANY IS HERE TO STAY

L. A. De Young Declares Concern Is Backing Him to the Limit

The Associated Oil company has come to Southern California to stay, according to L. A. De Young of 720 North Isabel street, local manager for that concern.

Just to show that he has something to back up his words, Mr. De Young states that the concern he represents is spending $6,000,000 in a loading and receiving station at San Pedro. At the present time this concern ships its gasoline from the north, in which work two immense oil tankers, each having a capacity of 75,000 barrels, are kept constantly busy. From this San Pedro point the gasoline is shipped to different parts of Southern California.

On the wharf that is maintained by this concern at San Pedro there is room for twenty oil cars at one time. It is one of the largest wharves at San Pedro.

In order to take care of the gasoline and lubricating oils that are received at the San Pedro receiving point, several sub-receiving stations are being established at various points in Southern California. One of these is located at Burbank, where more than $500,000 is being expended in a "local" distributing station.

It is from these various "local" distributing stations that the gasoline is taken by tank trucks to the hundreds of service stations in this part of the country that are handling Association gasoline, lubricating oils and greases. The tank wagons that are used for this distribution purpose are right up to the minute in every respect. They have air brakes and each truck has a meter so that the oil station operator may see that he is getting every drop of gasoline he is paying for. Every truck in this large fleet that is being maintained by the Association Oil in Southern California is brand new. Every bit of the company's equipment in Southern California was bought in this locality.

This method of shipping oil to Southern California and here distributing it is only a beginning. The plans of the company, it is understood, comprise the running of pipe lines from the various oil fields of Southern California to San Pedro, where an immense refinery will be constructed. If the aims of the company are carried out to the fullest extent this concern will have one of the most complete oil refining and distributing systems in Southern California before building operations are completed.

The Associated Oil company is the only concern distributing straight run gasoline in Southern California, according to Mr. De Young. This company produces and refines the celebrated Cyclo lubricating oil, which during the past two years has proven so popular in the northern part of the state. It sells what is known as scrip books, the purchasers of which secure a reduction of one cent on each gallon of Associated gasoline purchased, regardless of where it is secured. This company now has stations in Glendale, Burbank, Eagle Rock, Los Angeles, Pasadena and Hollywood. Its product is not handled at "Associated" stations, but is distributed through independent station owners.

ARRIVES FROM EAST

Miss Florence Mulvihill, late of "The Passing Show," New York, arrived Christmas eve from Birming ham, Ala., to visit her mother, Mrs. Mary E. Mulhivill, 341 West Cypress street, and her brother-in-law, Captain Francis Lawler of 089 East Palmer avenue. She will be here for an indefinite period.

HOW GLENDALE FOLKS SPENT XMAS, AND WHERE THEY WENT

Glendale folks enjoyed an old-fashioned Christmas today, for the most part, judging from the reports of their doings and entertainments, aside from the big Community Service celebration. Here are a few reports on what some of them did:

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Tanner of North Louise street are Christmas guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Redmond at 331 West Harvard street.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Botsford of Glenwood road and Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Allen and daughter, Sarah, of 352 West Lomita avenue are guests at a family Christmas dinner party at the home of Mrs. Betty L. Gurley in Los Angeles.

A party of twenty-two are enjoying Christmas day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Gray, 533 North Isabel street, the guests all being relatives of the host or hostess. Those present included Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Gray, Maurice Gray and son Philip of Moneta, Mrs. R. G. Haskill and Misses Julia and Nellie Haskill of Hermosa Beach, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Olin and family and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Gray and family of Glendale. A Christmas tree is one of the features of the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Gilliland of 839 North Kenwood street left Glendale last Friday to spend the Christmas holidays at a family reunion party being held at the home of Mrs. Gilliland's sister in Prescott, Ariz.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Bartlett of 833 West Broadway are dinner guests at the home of Mrs. Emma Hunt at 211 North Louise street, where they are celebrating Christmas.

The family Christmas party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnston, 111 North Everett street will be a small one this year on account of the illness of their sister-in-law, Mrs. Hattie Johnston, who fell and broke her hip about nine weeks ago and has been in a plaster cast ever since until this week when she was released from it. This release for her will make a happy Christmas for the whole party, which will include her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Johnston and her brother-in-law, James Johnston, besides the host and hostess. On New Year's day Mr. and Mrs. Johnston will have a quiet, informal family celebration of their golden wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Isitt will have as Christmas guests at a family dinner, their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Isitt and family, Mrs. Cormack from Kansas and her daughter.

Mrs. Eva Hutton of East Colorado will be hostess at a Christmas week-end party at which she will entertain Mrs. Emma M. Chambers and daughter, Miss Stella M. Chambers and her half-brother, Fred Stark, all of Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Huntley of Highland avenue will be host and hostess at a Christmas dinner which will be delayed a day or two in order that their grandchild, Jack Herbert Smith, who arrived about two weeks ago, may be old enough to stand the ordeal of social life. Covers will be laid for their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Smith, for Miss Virginia Huntley and a group of other friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben C. Glasscock and children, Margaret and Baird of 360 West Elk avenue are gathering around the "festive board" at the home of Mr. Glasscock's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Glasscock, at Alhambra for their Christmas celebration.

Mrs. A. R. Butterly of 335 West Harvard street is entertaining with a family dinner party today. Her guests include Mr. and Mrs. Ben Meyers of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Val Burgess of Los Angeles Mr. and Mrs. Walter Butterly o Glendale, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Telford of San Bernardino, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Cook of Glendale and Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Downs of Los Angeles.

H. D. Anderson and wife of North Orange street are going to San Jacinto to be the Christmas guests of Mrs. Fred Humphrey.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Wyman of 1326 North Maryland avenue entertained a group of fifteen relatives as their guests at a Christmast eve dinner party.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy W. Bosserman of 614 South Central avenue entertained as guests at their Christmas table today a number of relatives and friends. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Lyman B. Ashton, Mrs. Charles Bosserman, George Freeland, Miss Jane Freeland, Rev. and Mrs. Philip Kemp, Warren Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Bosserman and sons, Charles and Lyman.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Van Loon and family of 125 North Adams street are Christmas guests of Mr. Van Loon's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Leonard, at Huntington Park.

Christmas guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Gaede of 324 West Cerritos avenue include Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Britton and William Britton of Glendale, Mrs. Henry Vierich and son, Richard, of Hollywood.

The annual reunion of the descendants of the C. C. Chandler family is being combined with the Christmas celebration at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Peckham, 615 North Central avenue. There are thirty guests, including the Peckhams, Ellias, Weston, Kinne, Barnes; A. L. Chandler, C. L. Chandler, L. O. Chandler, W. B. Chandler, T. B. Chandler, Ennis and Smalley families of Glendale, the Davis family of Sacramento, and Balkema and Blodgett families of Los Angeles. The celebration includes a Christmas tree, with gifts and old-fashioned sacks of candy for everyone.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Morrow of 328 West Patterson avenue are entertaining as Christmas dinner guests Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Towson, parents of Mrs. Morrow, and Mrs. Cora Potter and daughters, Katherine and Mary, of Philadelphia, Pa., who are spending some time in Los Angeles.

Christmas is being enjoyed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clem Moore and daughter Blossom of 360 West California avenue by a group of relatives, including Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Moore of Columbus, Ohio, who are spending the winter in Glendale, and Miss Maurine Williams of Middlebourne, West Virginia.

Mrs. H. M. Lauderdale and daughters of 334 West Doran street entertained at Christmas dinner, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Lauderdale and family of Glendale.

Mrs. Fred Williams and daughters, Mildred and Winifred, and son Harold of 349 West Garfield avenue, spent Christmas with Mrs. Williams' sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Karl E. Hollingsworth at Yorba Linda.

Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Love and daughter, Miss Madeline, and son, Clifford, of 220 West Elk avenue, had as Christmas dinner guests, Mrs. Large and family, Miss Creed, all of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Martin of Burbank.

Mr. and Mrs. James Cunningham and two daughters of 1026 Florence Place spent Christmas at Orange as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Lane.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Crampton of 325 West Burchett street had as Christmas dinner guests, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Meyers from Montebello, Mrs. Mary E. Flynn and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Engleman and son Victor of Los Angeles, and Miss Susan Thomas of Glendale.

Miss Sabra C. Bradley of 720 North Louise street entertained with a party on Christmas eve, honoring her house guests, Miss Gertrude Knox of New York and Miss Mary Scott of Stanford. She was assisted in entertaining by the Misses Jessie and Esther Hill. Miss Bradley, Miss Knox and Miss Scott, were all former Near East Relief workers.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Anderson of 460 W. Elk street left Thursday evening for Sacramento to spend Christmas with the relatives of Mrs. Anderson. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson will not return to Glendale until after the New Year.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Edwards and family, of 803 East Acacia avenue are spending Christmas day as guests of Mrs. Edwards' mother, Mrs. C. W. Wiley, in Pasadena.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Holland of 518 Kenneth road are entertaining a group of friends as their guests at a Christmas dinner party. Covers will be laid for Miss Gertrude Knox of New York and Miss Mary Scott of Stanford, who are guests of Miss Sabra C. Bradley, Miss Bradley, Miss Jessie Hill, Miss Esther Hill of Glendale, Mr. and Mrs. William Booth of Ann Arbor, Michigan, who are spending the winter in Pasadena.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson and family of North Orange will be the guests of friends in Los Angeles on Christmas day. Mrs. Hutchinson says the holidays do not seem like holidays with Ralph away at college.

Mrs. Margaret Longley of 431 West Harvard street entertained with a family Christmas dinner which was served Sunday night. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Richardson D. White and daughter Helen, Kenneth Davenport, Miss Nellie Cassidy, Misses Margaret and Murray Longley and the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Van Wie and family of 620 North Adams street are guests at a family Christmas celebration being held at the home of Mr. Van Wie's mother, Mrs. Addie Van Wie, in Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. V. M. Hollister of 416 North Louise street are entertaing with a family dinner party in celebration of Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Phillips of 1102 East California avenue entertained as their Christmas dinner guests today Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Wells, Harold and Mary Wells, Herbert Wells of Omaha, Neb.; Mrs. Richard Van Duzer and son Richard, Jr., of New York, Mrs. John J. Iten of Los Angeles. The afternoon is being enjoyed at a musicale. Mrs. VanDuzer is a talented vocalist and Miss Mary Wells is a pianiste.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Russell of South Central avenue will entertain with a Christmas dinner today at which places will be indicated for Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Godfrey and Mrs. Helen Knappen Scripps, sister of the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kretchmer were dinner guests on Saturday evening of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Godfrey of 325 North Orange street.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Hildreth, 217 Milford street, will today be dinner guests of Mrs. George Cronkhite of Los Angeles. Mrs. G. B. Burbach and daughter, Marian, will also be guests. Mrs. Hildreth and Mrs. Cronkhite are sisters.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Green of 127 North Orange street entertained with a Christmas dinner Sunday night at which covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Miltenberg, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Hopkins and an aunt, who is their house guest and Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Cornell of Van Nuys. The table was gay with holly and Christmas greenery, and illuminated by decorated candles in tall silver candlesticks. Following the dinner a tree for the kiddies of the household was lighted and enjoyed.

Today the host and hostess and family are guests at a big family reunion at the home of D. J. Green in La Canada, where 26 are being entertained with a big Christmas dinner, and Christmas tree bearing gifts for the nine grandchildren of the house of Green.

Mrs. J. W. Garner of 600 North Louise is this evening entertaining a group of friends at a dinner which will be followed by the distribution of the presents on a beautiful Christmas tree. The guest list will include Mrs. Walter B. Davis and son, Kenneth, Miss Sophia Brown, Mrs. Rose Humphrey, Dr. and Mrs. Earnest Parker, covers being also laid for the two children of the hostess, John William Jr., and Worthington Garner.

Mrs. F. W. Hill of 519 North Louise entertained Saturday night with a Christmas party for her daughter, Miss Marian Hill. The Christmas decorations with which the house was adorned for the event climaxed in a beautiful tree bearing gifts for all the guests which were distributed by a very convincing Santa Claus. The hostess was assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Robert Forsyth of Los Angeles, and by Mrs. Elizabeth Hall.

A musical program to which Miss Hill and Barney Mather contributed vocal numbers, and Mrs. Forsyth, violin and piano numbers, constituted part of the entertainment, the balance of the evening being given to games and dancing. At its close refreshments were served at beautifully appointed tables, the favors being the handiwork of Miss Hill. The guest list included Misses Eunice Bere, Mary Boyd, Amelia Vorwerk, Jewel Mantooth, Portia Chambers, Ruth Hawkins, Marian and Dorothy Hill; Messrs. Barney Mather, Harold Bere, Sidney Chambers, Geo. Morrison, Stanley Vogel, Le Sherman and Vernon Allen.

Today members of the Hill family are guests of Mrs. Forsyth, who is giving a Christmas party this evening in her Los Angeles home.

Mr. and Mrs. George Cheney of Coronado are guests over Christmas and New Year's holidays at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Meeker of 1320 East Colorado street. Miss Mildred Meeker and Miss Muriel Shane of Minneapolis, who is a student at Occidental college, returned Sunday from San Diego, where they had been spending several days. Miss Shane will be the house guest of Miss Meeker until school opens.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Brand of "Miradero," North Glendale, entertained a party of forty guests at an old-fashioned Christmas tree and program given at their home on Christmas Eve. Those present included near relatives and also employes on the Brand estate and their families. The children present, who numbered about fifteen, gave the program around the Christmas tree. Santa Claus paid a call and distributed gifts to all. After the program an informal good time and dancing was enjoyed.

Covers were laid for twenty-four at a Chrismas dinner party held today at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hanson of 221 Arden avenue. Those present included Mrs. Hanson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Botsford, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Whitney, Mrs. Maude H. Davis, Henry Whitney, Mrs. G. A. Shippee, Miss Mae Shippee and Miss Fern Shippee of Pasadena; Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Carscallen, Edgar Carscallen, Robert Carscallen, Vera Carscallen, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Fields and sons Darrell and Lisle of Gardena; Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Ruggles of Watts, George Hummell of Redondo Beach, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hanson and daughter, Miss Clarice Hanson of Glendale.

Relatives gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Tower of 214 East Park avenue to enjoy Christmas dinner today include Mrs. Tower's parents and niece, Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Collins and Miss Jane Collins, and Mr. Tower's brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. O. I. Tower and family of Los Angeles.

The holiday spirit of good cheer is being enjoyed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hock of 612 Orange Grove avenue today by a group of relatives who are being entertained at Christmas dinner. The guests include Mrs. Etta Earnest of Los Angeles, Mrs. M. L. Hock, Martin and Mildred Hock and Walter Rumcorn of North Dakota.

S. L. Gillan of 203 West Maple street returned Sunday from a three days' business trip to Wheeler Ridge.

Mr. and Mrs. John Camphouse of 217 East Maple street are entertaining a party of fifteen relatives at a 1 o'clock Christmas dinner today. A Christmas tree, holly and poinsettias will feature the decorations throughout the house.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Archer of 615 East Elk avenue are entertaining with a family dinner party today. Their guests include Mrs. George W. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Peck, Mrs. Ella Parmenter of Long Beach and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Roberts of Glendale.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Parker and Miss Lucille Parker of Lankershim, former residents of Glendale, are Christmas dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Gillan of 203 West Maple street.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ackley of North Kenwood street entertained at a Christmas dinner on Sunday their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Ackley and son, who will be with them until Monday afternoon.

BATHS?

"Pop," asked little Jimmie, "are the Russian Bull-she-vicks white people?"

"They probably are when they are born," replied his father, looking up from his paper.

BUY EARLY WINS LE GRAND'S THANKS

Louis Le Grand, agent of the P. E. on Saturday commented appreciatively on the response of Glendale people to the slogan "Buy Early," and as a result the holiday outgoing express shipments came in much earlier than usual and have made the work of the Christmas season so much easier that there is no comparison to be made with other years. Everything has gone out as fast as received and the incoming shipments have also been handled with ease.

PENDROYS THANK GLENDALE FOR XMAS TRADE

Surpassed All Expectation Through Personal Acquaintance Here

Earl Pendroy forsook his post up aloft to come down to the first floor and lend a hand at congested points during the rush of Christmas trade on the first of the beautiful store, which is proof that he knows his business from basement to skylight.

He and Mrs. Pendroy express the greatest satisfaction with the response they have received from Glendale people. They set a fairly high goal for their first year's business but it has been surpassed. They regard it, however, as but a step in their plan to build a house of merchandise adequate to and worthy of Glendale.

"There is only one way to do it," Mrs. Pendroy declared the other day when a customer commented on their success. "It is by identifying yourself with your town, studying its needs, and then giving that personal service that will win and keep patrons.

"Here we are a community in which personal acquaintance is possible. We know that the present sale does not perhaps count so much as the sale we will make tomorrow and the day after tomorrow. It may seem a loss to allow a clerk to spend three hours with one wavering customer to sell a child's coat, but it is an investment for the future. That buyer will come again. It is an advantage to the patron to have the young woman behind the counter a smiling acquaintance who is interested in meeting her need and having her call again instead of merely "getting by" with the floor walker.

"We have a boundless faith in Glendale and her future and are willing to work hard to win and deserve the confidence and patronage of Glendale. Such things do not come about by chance. They have to be earned."

AN IDYL OF XMAS IN GLENDALE, 1923

BY GERTRUDE GIBBS

"This freedom!" murmured John Thorpe to himself as might one just escaped from years of drudgery, as he sauntered down Brand Boulevard, luxuriating in the sunshine and breeze from the mountains, the Christmas season of 1923.

"Well, I'm here," his soliloquy continued, as though to assure himself of the realization of some long cherished dream.

"Some burg! No spreading chestnut trees nor village blacksmiths here!" and he studied with manifest approval the solidly built business blocks so modern in architecture and yet so adapted to their setting. The irregular sky line and roof line pleased him because of their escape from the ugliness and deadly monotony of but too many of our western cities. Even the skyscrapers which were beginning to lift their heads here and there received silent commendation.

It was his first real glimpse of Glendale for he had debarked only the night before at dusk from one of the palatial airships at which the Glendale station was a port of call, and had been taken at once to Hotel Advance on Glendale and Broadway which had but recently opened its doors to welcome the visitors flocking to the best advertised little city in California.

John Thorpe was good to look upon even though youth had departed and left in its stead the assured confidence of early middle age which has made good in the business world. It was his first vacation since he established himself as a contractor in Chicago. They had been hard years of struggling and truckling with warring labor unions which speedily converted him from boy to man and made his enterprise a hazardous gamble. But that was past. His business had been absorbed by a larger corporation which had paid him well for his interest, and he was now foot loose and ready for any joy which might come his way.

The hurrying shoppers, the stores garlanded in Christmas greens and wreaths studded with the California holly that was new to him, made a pleasant kaleidoscopic picture in his mind during his leisurely progress.

At Pendroy's Store he stopped, his shrewd gray eyes twinkling with amusement as he read the signs attached to the bewildering collection of beautiful merchandise displayed in the show window—"For Mother," "For Sister," and so on through quite a catalogue of relationships.

John was alone in the world having lost father and mother in a great ocean disaster. He wondered, if his mother lived, whether he would have bought her a purple silk petticoat or a set of furs and as he looked at the things he might buy his eyes grew a trifle wistful.

Turning from the window he surprised the same look in another pair of eyes but these were the eyes of golden haired youth. He knew he had never seen their owner before and yet, there was a haunting familiarity in the gaze.

His vis a vis appeared to share his own feeling for the lips parted in a smile which encouraged John to ask, "Well, have you decided what to get for father?"

"No," the smiling lips answered. "I guess all father needs is a harp and a crown and he probably got those long ago. You see, my father is dead, and the only Christmas presents I am likely to buy are for Maude Travers. With mother sailing away on her wedding trip, heaven knows where, no presents can reach her."

The start with which John Thorpe heard the name of his newly found acquaintance seemed not to be observed but it emboldened him to say: "You and I seem to be in the same boat so far as families are concerned. I have been wondering how it would feel to give mother a silk petticoat, sister a string of pearl beads, Johnny a train, and I am willing to wager a good deal you have been thinking the same thoughts. Suppose we pool our issues. If I finance the deal do you imagine you could find "mother," "dad," "sister" and "grandma." We mustn't forget the old lady. Will you help me?"

To neither did the quick acceptance of the pact seem at all strange. Then began for those two a real orgy of shopping. When toy departments were visited Maude had to drag John away to save stock for other buyers, and the big sunny room in the hotel began to look like a bazaar.

Maude proved a wonder in discovering delightful imaginary relatives all of whom were pointed out to John as candidates before they were finally elected to relationship in the family.

Accompanied by a youth in a very official looking messenger costume the day before Christmas, they made the rounds of the homes where "mother," "sister," "Aunt Mary," "Grandma," and the rest were to be found, enjoying the bewilderment of the recipients when the mysterious packages bearing no hint of the donors, were handed to them.

"What shall we do tomorrow?" they asked each other, for after the association of those busy days of playing Santa Claus they had come so close together the thought that it was over brought an ache to each heart.

"Well," said John, with his customary preface and authority, "we will have a big Christmas dinner together and go to the show, and then I have something very important to say to you. I am not going to lose my little partner right away if I can help it. Remember, you haven't told me the story of your life!"

Maude grinned happily with no protest against the plan and they parted for the night, each to wrap with tender care the gift to be bestowed on the morrow when they should dine together.

And it all came to pass as John said. They had the dinner and the show, and he didn't lose his little golden haired partner.

"Did he marry her? Mercy no, Maude is a boy who is now studying hard to fit himself to be an architect and partner of John Thorpe, who fell in love with Glendale at first sight, decided he could find no better field in which to return to the contracting business than this wonderful little city, and who proposed to Maude, son of his old and dearly loved college chum, that he fit himself by going to college at John's expense for an eventual partnership in the business.

No, John Thorpe is still fancy free so far as maids are concerned, and it will take a peach of a girl to compete with Maude in his affections.

Enough serpentine to reach around the globe, if placed in a single strand, has been ordered for the three-day Carnival of Venice to be held at the beach city from December 30 to January 1, inclusive.

AT THE THEATRES

T. D. & L. THEATRE COLLECTS SPUDS FOR CHILDREN

Paid for Matinee Performance of "Young Rajah"

Twenty-five sacks of potatoes paid in admissions at the T. D. & L. testified to the spirit of generosity prevailing at the Christmas season among the children of Glendale who attended the matinee at the T. D. & L. theater on Saturday afternoon, the required admittance being that each child bring a donation of two good potatoes to be given to the Monte Vista Home for Undernourished Children. Ralph Allan, manager of the T. D. & L. states that in most cases instead of bringing two potatoes, the children brought four and five. In addition to the grown-ups attending the matinee there were 950 children present. The donation of potatoes from the children of Glendale was taken to the Monte Vista Home Sunday afternoon.

'DANGEROUS AGE AT THE T. D. & L. THEATER

Patrons of the T. D. & L. Theatre will have the privilege Xmas Day of seeing another production directed by John M. Stahl, who made "One Clear Call" and "The Child Thou Gavest Me," two of the most popular motion pictures in recent history. It is "The Dangerous Age," and is declared to be the finest photoplay created by Mr. Stahl to date.

Just what the "dangerous age" is Manager Ralph Allan refuses to reveal in advance, but that it will form the theme of an engrossing picture is a foregone conclusion. Mr. Stahl has the knack of transforming a scenario into a living and breathing thing, and although he can inject dramatic qualities of a tense nature, they are always accompanied by realism and plausibility. His characters are real people, and the members of his casts do not walk through their parts like automatons.

ON THE CAMPUS

"He seems to inherit a mania for burning the midnight oil."

"Probably from the incubator."

THE GLENDALE TO SHARE RECEIPTS WITH ELKS FUND

With a very Merry Christmas to all, the silver screen at the Glendale theater will enlist in the service of charity; under the banner of the charity fund of the Glendale Lodge, No. 1289, through the order of Manager Howe.

Ten per cent of the total of the screen earnings of the big shows, "Forget Me Not" and "Pop Tuttle's Movie Queen," will be donated to the fund, which has proved so beneficent to the poor of the city.

The amount that will thus be earned by the screen for charity will be measured by the attendance at the theater during the holiday. A review of the films will be found in its usual place under the heading of theaters.

In staging the offering for the Elks' fund, Mr. Howe shows his regard for the organization of which he is a life member, affiliated with the Pasadena lodge.

"FORGET ME NOT" OPENS AT THE GLENDALE

Early success has attended the career of Gareth Hughes, who plays Jimmy, the orphan, in "Forget-Me-Not," at the Glendale Theatre.

That he is not a bit older than his appearance denotes is well evidenced in the fact that he is only twenty-five years old. His first experience as an actor was at the age of thirteen when he joined a Shakespearean road company in England. He came to the United States with the Welsh Players and later became a member of the Ben Greet Players.

As a boy lieutenant in the war play, "Moloch," he made his first big New York hit.

THE UNREASONABLE MAN

Mrs. Longwed—Do you find it hard to cook for your husband?

Mrs. Justwed—Dreadfully! You see, all I learned in the cooking school was diet for the sick room, and Ferdinand keeps so disgustingly healthy I can't cook anything to please him.

The truest and best friend a man can have is a wife who does her best to keep him in the straight and narrow path.

Truths in Epigram

Sense shines with a double luster when it is set in humility. An able and yet humble man is a jewel worth a kingdom.—Penn.

The eternal stars shine out as soon as it is dark enough.—Carlyle.

All things are artificial; for nature is the art of God.—Browne.

BEFITTING THE CRIME

Chief Oaks of the Los Angeles police is quoted as saying that he would like to see a state law carrying the death penalty for illicit dope sellers.

There can be no doubt that the criminals in question are of the most depraved and deadly type. Their presence in any community is a menace not only to morals but to life. Their victims are slain not merely in body, but in soul. Decay of morals marks the early stages of the addict. He loses all sense of right and wrong. He becomes a liar and thief. He does not hesitate at murder. He is ready to sacrifice position and family to his craving for drugs. He is totally devoid of any sense of shame. His physical agonies are terrible, and in the end he is an imbecile or maniac.

The person who lives by profiting from the frenzy of the addict is not fit to live at all. The world would be better and safer could the breed be exterminated. Nevertheless, it is highly improbable that the naming of the death penalty would be effective. On the contrary, it would result in reluctance to find the wretched prisoner guilty whatever the evidence. A long prison term, rigidly enforced, without any possibility of parole, would in all likelihood be more efficacious.

Under the law as it exists now in California, there is no chance of punishing an offender according to his deserts. The juries try to do it, and the courts strive to be severe in instances. A convicted man goes to the penitentiary apparently for a protracted stay. The parole board gives him his liberty so soon that long before expiration of his stated sentence, he is at large plying his former nefarious vocation.

There is not much utility in talking of penalties while the parole system intervenes virtually to abolish penalty. Drug peddlers ought to be sent away of course. But the result, according to precedent, would be that they would promptly eb sent back.

THE INDEPENDENT COAST

The statement is made by local bankers of standing that opposition to bank branches on this coast comes from the east. Bankers of the Atlantic side always have dominated in finance. They see in the consolidations, such as have been numerous in California, the end of the old plan. President Sartori of the Security bank of Los Angeles, the institution being the head of a strong combination, calls attention to the fact that $22,000,000 bonds of a San Francisco concern recently were purchased here, and that this would have been impossible but for the gathering of several banks into one compact organization.

Heretofore when the state, or a county or city, or even a large industrial concern has offered bonds, the sale has depended upon Wall street. Thither went the profits; to the injury of Pacific coast capital and investors. As Mr. Sartori explains "by extension into branch banks of the large banks, there is formed a coherency and harmony of coast interests, and the capacity is created to take care of large bond issues and great projects, which otherwise would not exist."

It is natural to assume, also, that coast capitalists have a more intimate knowledge of coast values and resources, and that they might discern sound merit in enterprises that would not make appeal to Wall street, and in the absence of support from that quarter could not have been carried on, under former conditions.

ANCIENT WONDERS

There is fascination in archeological research. Nothing could well be more impressive than the discovery of civilizations not only long dead, but buried. So remote was the day at which they flourished that no real history concerning them is extant. In regard to their culture, customs and material achievements, the only record, save tradition, must be that brought to light by the researches of science.

It is most unfortunate that the field of archeology has proved so seductive to liars that many tales have been told, at space rates, of marvelous finds. Glittering palaces and heaps of royal gems have been unearthed by a tool no more potential than a scribbler's pen. Thus for the reader desirous of knowledge, fact and fiction have been almost inextricably interwoven. It was when Flammarion portrays the secrets of the starry deeps, and a fine discernment is essential to understanding whether he is telling truth or indulging in fantasy.

If accounts that seem to be correct are verified, the tomb of King Tutenkhamun has been found. He was one of the pharoahs supposed to have flourished in the fourteenth century before Christ. He must have lived in surroundings of magnificent splendor, for the place in which he rests is a veritable storehouse of treasure. The failure is said to exemplify in unprecedented profusion the beauty and refinement of Egyptian art at the very culmination of its development.

Such a discovery sets the imagination stirring. Thoughts turn to a civilization long vanished; to peoples who for hundreds of years have been as the dust. They go forward in the vein of prophesy, conjecturing if the day is to come when future races, exploring the graves of this generation, shall ponder puzzled as to what manner of man flourished in the twentieth century A. D.

CAVILING AT THE SCHOOLS

Charges are made that the cost of public schools has increased faster than the population. The extraordinary figures quoted to sustain the charges doubtless are incorrect. They would show that the difference in ratio of cost to population is far greater than, in truth, it is. That there is a difference, and that it is of the precise character, so far as it goes, that the critics affirm, is a fortunate circumstance. It speaks well for the intelligence of the times. It proves that this people believes in education and is ready to pay the price. At least it will provide buildings capacious and artistic, the best of books and pay competent teachers well. The training of children is not a matter to be faced chiefly with a determination to keep the costs down. The public desires first class facilities. Liberality in this respect is not akin to prodigality.

California is proud of its schools, ready to support them, to expend on them all they are worth. The cities of this state have this year voted unprecedented issues of school bonds. The issue in Los Angeles was one of the largest on record for similar purpose, that in San Francisco but a few millions less. In smaller municipalities a like spirit has been shown. In every instance the bonds were ratified by a far greater majority than actually necessary to carry them.

Quality is the one thing desirable in relation to schools. No wanton waste, of course, would be tolerated, but there will be no grumbling at expenditure save on the part of the ever present minority that grumbles because of constitutional tendency, and if not grumbling at the cost of education, would find some other theme equally engaging to them.

An editor remarks that while the ku klux klan is all wrong the fact should be remembered that it grew up because of laxity of government. It might be well to cite some proof of the alleged fact. In the common estimation a ku klux mob is worse than the ordinary rabble because it is deliberate. The only evidence of laxity of government in this relation is that government permits the organization to exist.

A GREAT SHOPKEEPER

By DR. FRANK CRANE

John Wanamaker, who has recently died, was a great shopkeeper.

This is a title of respect and not of reproach.

At this period of the world's development no man is more honorable than the honest merchant, no man is greater than the great merchant.

Dr. Frank Crane

We often get the real truth about ourselves from our enemies, who are not particular about hurting our feelings. Napoleon, the enemy of the English, said that "England is a nation of shopkeepers."

And this is the simple truth.

The English-speaking people are not primarily military or religious—at least, religious in the sense of being fanatical. To them the chief business in life is to minister to life, to make life richer and stronger. Hence, they have been great in invention, in applied science, in medicine, and, most of all, in trade.

Mr. Wanamaker was in many respects a typical American. He was a pioneer, he was an efficient administrator. He was a man of great vision. He understood the age in which he lived and the people in the actual world. He was intensely practical.

He was one of that group of great men who have grown up with the rapid expansion of modern business.

He grew up and kept pace with modern storekeeping, just as Edison and Coffin grew up with the electrical industry, Judge Gary with the steel industry, George F. Baker with banking, George Eastman with the manufacture of photographic material, John D. Rockefeller with the oil business, Cyrus H. K. Curtis with the magazine business, and William M. Wood with the woollen industry.

Such men as these have made modern America, and, in turn, it may be said with equal truth that modern America has made such men.

They are the expression of the spirit of the times. The reason they occupy positions of prominence is that the greater part of the population of America is ambitious to achieve that kind of prominence. Little by little, the business man is crowding out the priest and the sailor from the pages of history.

It is a good thing. One of the surest grounds for hope that war is doomed is the fact that the majority of young men are not dreaming of or longing for war and for military careers.

The cynical conclusion that all this means that the world is getting more sordid and material is not a just one. The right conclusion is that the world is more concerned in the enlargement and enrichment of the common life than it is in that kind of glory that is based upon the common misery.

A great soldier like Napoleon or a great monarch like Philip of Spain might achieve an eminence built upon the despair of thousands. A great hierarchy like that of ancient Egypt might be based upon the ignorance and credulity of the multitude.

A great merchant like Marshall Field, or P. D. Armour, or John Wanamaker can only rise to the heights of success by making the greatest number of people contented, prosperous, and intelligent.

To be a great shopkeeper implies that kind of greatness which is most consistent with democracy.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

QUERIES

Possessive Before Gerund

Isabel M. Michelman: "Will you kindly advise me whether the possessive form of the following bold-faced word is used correctly: 'There was considerable question as to the defendant's having complied with the provision of the statute'?" Answer: Yes.

Beginning a Letter With "I"

To J. L. Boardman: There used to be a traditional rule that a letter should never begin with "I". While modern writing does not uphold this rule, it is well to remember that there was once such a warning in our books on letter writing in order to forestall monotony of style. Begin a letter with "I" if by so doing the thought of the communication is more directly and forcefully expressed. But seek variety.

Eating (?) or Drinking (?) Soup

L. L. Leffler: "A discussion has come up which nobody seems to be able to settle to our advantage. 'A' contends that the expression 'Please eat your soup' is correct, whereas 'B' contends that the expression 'Please drink your soup' is the correct one. Will you please favor us with your opinion. Answer: You eat soup with a spoon and drink bouillon from a cup.

On Spelling

Lillian Latkin: "I would thank you if you would please let me know the correct spelling of the two following words: uncollectable (uncollectible); deductable (deductible)." Answer: Deductible, and uncollectable or uncollectible.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

Forth to the task.

That is about as good a slogan as we can set down for the coming year.

And for all the coming years.

Because there will always be the task to do.

The millennium will never be reached.

And if it were and there were nothing to do, what a dull world it would be.

Imagine the smith with his forge ever cold.

No clang of hammer on steel.

No blowing of the bellows.

No sparks rising and crackling up the chimney.

No shoe made or share sharpened or bolt threaded.

All cold and dead and lifeless.

Nothing to do.

What a wretchedly uninteresting world it would be.

The artist's easel torn and cast aside.

The carpenter's hammer in the rubbish heap.

No sound of saw or hammer or chisel or axe anywhere.

Nothing to do!

The plow rusted and idle in the furrow.

The harvester without any song.

No grain billowing in the fields.

No blossoms on the trees.

Everything done.

Nothing but idleness and sloth and decay.

Nothing to struggle for.

A state of final accomplishment.

Ships riding at anchor in the harbor.

Swinging and rising and falling with the tide.

Worm eaten and decaying.

No fire in the boilers.

No cargoes in the holds.

No cranes lifting loads and dropping them.

No men shouting and giving commands and furling sails or coiling ropes.

The marts closed.

Doors locked.

No weavers at the looms or spinners and machines or toilers at the mines.

Nothing to do.

All done.

Accomplishment complete.

No frowns to chase away.

No problems to solve.

No schoolboys with "smiling morning faces."

School out forever and a day.

Everybody on a vacation.

The world just a place of emptied tins and scattered papers and pop corn remnants and spilled lemonade.

A perpetual picnic.

Forth to the task.

That is the slogan.

Glad that the problems are not all solved.

Glad there is work to do.

The smith rejoicing at the grip of the bellows.

The farmer rejoicing at the shearing of the sod with his share.

The spirit of work.

To go forth gladly to service.

Realizing the great works to be done.

Glad to have a part in it.

The poet with his verses.

The preacher with his inspiration.

The teacher with knowledge.

The carpenter with his hammer and saw.

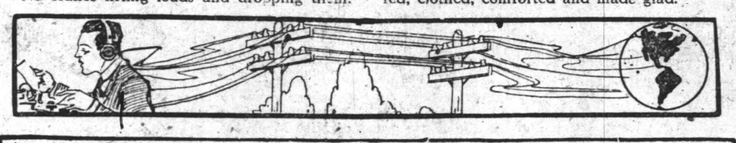
With spirit, in gladness, by industry and through love and kindness and tolerance to do our work and have our beings.

That the world of men and women may be fed, clothed, comforted and made glad.



Songs of the Poets

To Celia—By Ben Jonson (1573-1637)

Drink to me only with thine eyes,
And I will pledge with mine;
Or leave a kiss but in the cup
And I'll not look for wine.
The thirst that from the soul doth rise
Doth ask a drink divine;
But might I of Jove's nectar sup,
I would not change for thine.

I sent thee late a rosy wreath,
Not so much honoring thee
As giving it a hope that there
It could not wither'd be;
But thou thereon didst only breathe,
And sent'st it back to me;
Since when it grows, and smells, I swear,
Not of itself but thee!

ELEVATORS—STREET CARS—AND THINGS

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

When should men, in the presence of women, remove their hats?

Most of us unhesitatingly announce the rules of etiquette on this subject. Yet if we analyze the same rules I venture to say we will find no good reason from any of them.

Emphatically the sticklers for etiquette insist that men in an elevator shall uncover when a woman enters it. Yet these same men, without fear of criticism, sit covered in the street car, along side the women before whom, but lately, they removed their hats in the elevator.

Where is the difference?

Why is it courtesy for a man to uncover when travelling with a bit of femininity from basement to skyloft of a building and at the same time perfectly proper to ride in a street car along side any woman with his head gear firmly in place?

Take, again, the matter of hats in hotel lobbies. Did you ever see a group of laughing and gossiping men stop suddenly and remove their hats because a lady passed thorugh the lobby? Assuredly not.

But why not? Quien Sabe?

Why is a hatted man in an elevator a boor and the same man under similar circumstances, only in a hotel lobby, a gentleman?

Any logical mind can see the absurdities in the hat question. If one attempts to discuss the matter in terms of logic he will forthwith run into numbers of people who grow red in the face and hot under the collar and accuse him of encouraging disrespect for womanhood.

Also if men should uncover in elevators, why not at bank windows? Here men and women stand shoulder to shoulder, yet the men don't remove their hats. Nobody expects them to do so.

Why not?

Mayor Kohler of Cleveland has recently been trying to inject some common sense into the etiquette of hat raising. He has directed the attention of the public to the custom governing this matter in railroad stations.

Here men and women sit together, the men wearing their hats and thinking nothing of it. Yet if a man and woman conversing together in a railway station stepped together into an elevator the man, to be a gentleman, would immediately have to remove his hat.

The mayor logically suggests that a little less attention to form on elevators and a little more real courtesy to stenographers in office buildings would be a pleasing change.

Mayor Kohler is, of course, suggesting a rank innovation. How people will take it remains to be seen, but at least we should applaud him for directing our attention to an illogical situation.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

TROUBLE WITH CENSORSHIP

[New York Times]

By their big adverse vote against a special censorship for moving pictures, the people of Massachusetts did not mean, of course, to express a liking for the indecent and the reprehensible in this form of amusement. They voted as they did, presumably, in part because the proprietors of the movie theaters took pains to fix public attention on the question, in part from weariness of coercion in all its forms, and in part from a reasoned conviction that on general principles censorship in any form is a detestable thing and that resort to it is justified only in really great emergencies.

The trouble with censorship lies in the censors. Next to always they mistake their own standards of taste and propriety for absolute right, and they take a vicious joy in enforcing on others their own notions and prejudices.

The most harm from the movies does not come from the pictures that censors condemn. Of those, such as need condemning could be attended by the police. Neither censors nor the police bother about the pictures that teach false sentiment, present life as it is not, and lead young minds to acquiescence in absurd or trivial ideals. It is here that wise censorship would do their work.

[New York Herald]

The bitterest thing about Debs' speech in Chicago is not the venom of his words but the fact that he is free to utter them.

When Debs was pardoned eleven months ago Attorney General Daugherty issued a statement in which he expressed his hope that Debs would "devote his talent to some useful purpose."

The only purpose to which Debs devotes his talent is the purpose of the anarchist, the bolshevist and the common or garden crook.

"I despise and defy their laws," screams the beneficiary of the President's mercy. Criminal or deluded followers will echo Debs' lawless words.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

The world respects Luther Burbank, and pays deference to his opinions. It knows something of what he has been able to do with fruits and flowers. He trains them to perform wonders. He adds to their beauty and usefulness. If a fruit, as provided by nature, seems to him to lack perfection, he adds the finishing touch, and the public has the benefit.

HENRY JAMES

Mr. Burbank has been prophesying as to the fruits of a century hence. Prediction from him touching such a subject is not idle chatter. He says that strawberries are to be as large as apples. He looks for the development of new and distinct lines both in fruits and vegetables. They will become more nutritious, and more able to resist weather conditions including temperature, wind and rain. Some will be harder, so as to be shipped far without damage. Others will be more luscious.

Varieties of grains will be immune to smut and other ailments, being made so by treatment similar to that by which humans ward off disease.

Low grade soils will be productive through growths adapted to the conditions such soils present.

An effect looked for by Mr. Burbank is that the food of the future will not include meat. Such will be the range and quality of that produced from the ground, that meat will not be necessary.

If such time ever comes, the "big five," packers of endless pork, beef, mutton, will be in hard luck; although this thought is quite apart from anything Mr. Burbank expresses.

Special trains are to bring tourists direct from Chicago to Pasadena this winter. From such coign of vantage they may motor to Los Angeles and other places of interest.

The prospects are for a larger number of tourists than ever before. One reason is that the charms of southern California are getting better known each year. Another doubtless is that tourists who have gone to Europe, have been so rigorously fleeced that they regard one experience as plenty.

Incident to the war on narcotics, a group of Los Angeles ministers have started a little war of their own directed against the chief of police. This does not seem a wise policy.

The police know more about the narcotic traffic than the ministers do. If the police are directed to clean out the poison vendors, and given funds for the purpose, they could do it, probably, and the ministers couldn't. And it must be admitted that the chief is as hotly opposed to the dope evil as a minister or anybody else.

It is not probable that the robbery at the Denver mint will be permitted to become a closed incident. The government is likely to be peevish until the thieves have been caught. There are many things to be investigated. The accounts as given in the dispatches do not seem to portray the exact facts.

That seven armed men would dare to attack thirty, and that having so attacked, they could defeat the thirty, if all were acting in good faith, has the air of improbability.

It would not be strange if the robbery were proved to be an "inside job." Why could not crooked attaches, knowing the attempt was to be made, have rendered the guns of the guards useless? The guns were useless, and yet the guards knew how to shoot.

WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN PILGRIM

Mrs. Heck Thomas is as sulky as a wet hen. She says that Heck does not have to work if he does not want to. He has let go of his old job and will not take hold of his new one for four weeks to come. He might just as well spend the time in the open air with Mrs. Heck, occasionally chauffeuring her to teas and the movies and meetings of the Sewing and Crabbing Society.

He hasn't had a real vacation in five years," says Mrs. Heck. "But what does he do, now that he has a chance to rest? He spends all his time in that old public library."

Heck only looks sad and distant when he hears this tale, which he does each day as long as Mrs. Heck's strength holds out and he is on the premises. But he explained to me, as he had some thirty or forty times to Mrs. Heck, why he works when he might lay off.

"I'm the sort that is ruined by idleness," he said. "Other men may loaf and go back to business all pepped up. I cannot. A month's loafing would spoil me."

Four or five years ago his firm sent him on an important western assignment. When he reached the west the assignment had blown up, but the firm told him to stay put. They had other plans in mind. For one solid month he enjoyed himself on an expense account in a western city, in which the men were all full of lively plans for fun-making when the day's grind was over. He became a snappy after-dinner speaker during that period, and really learned to play golf. It was the only first-rate loafing spell he had ever had in his life. He returned home with a distinct grouch.

"It took me the better part of a year to get back to the old pace," said Heck.

Heck's firm lost patience with the boy. "He's slipping," they said. "Just a youngster, too. Hardly more than forty. But skidding." Somehow he managed to get his reluctant nose back on the grindstone and keep it there. Now that he has no office to which to go he is reading up on business at the library, and working as many hours a day as though that were a job he had been set to do.

"I've got to do it," said Heck. "If I do not work all the time I hate to work at all—and I cannot afford that luxury."

Christmas

—This year finds the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital and all connected with it with hearts full of gratitude for past blessings and joy in anticipation of a program of expansion soon to be carried out.

—Christ came into the world on Christmas Day to save the world, to comfort the sorrowing, to minister to the sick. It is the privilege of the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital to carry on in His name the work of helping people to keep well and ministering to suffering.

—We are thankful for the loyalty of the people of Glendale toward this institution and at this season of the year, when all hearts should be attuned to the divine harmony, we sing with the Heavenly Host of old:

"Glory to God in the Highest, and on Earth Peace, Good Will to Men."

ALL CHRISTMASY AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Sunday's Evening Service Honors the Christ Who Was Born in Bethlehem

By O. L. KILBORN

Yesterday's services at Central Christian church were all in honor of the Christ. The Bible school had no lessons, but held an assembly, before which a pageant, "The Star of Bethlehem," was put on by the children of the Junior department, under the direction of Mrs. D. A. MacKay, superintendent of dramatics for the school, she reading the story and the little folk illustrating it in pantomime.

There was no Christmas tree and no giving of presents to any but the children in the primary department, as it is the practice of this school to observe the holy Christmas day by giving, not getting. Teachers and pupils all enter heartily into this work and the "white gifts" brought by them will gladden many a poor family. The special offering was devoted to ministerial relief.

At the morning worship service immediately following the Bible school session, Christmas songs, anthems and special numbers were sung, and then, after the communion was reverently partaken of, Rev. Clifford A. Cole, beloved pastor of the church, delivered his Christmas sermon, on the topic: "Is There Room for the Christ?"

Speaking from the text, "There was no room for them in the inn," he first told the story of the going down to Bethlehem to be enrolled for taxation and of Jesus' birth in a manager, and then said, in part:

"Some people gain distinction by the famous place of the earth which which gave them birth. Some are eminent because of their noble and worthy ancestry. Not so with Jesus of Nazareth. But through Him his mother as been given immortal fame and the place where He was born as become the most memorable of any spot on the map of the civilized world.

"Had the inn-keeper only known who it was that would be born in Bethlehem that night he would have thrown all others out of his hotel and would have kept this family. If he had only known!

"While the Christ is the most widely known and revered of all that have ever lived; while more people do Him homage than ever before, still there are places where there is not room for the King—even in America.

"Is there room for Him in our Christmas observance? Does the heralding of a long-whiskered, big-bellied, old man and the giving of him central place in our merriment and Christmas observance, do the Christ justice? In the subtle and more and more prevalent use of "Xmas" for "Christmas," dropping the name of Him whom we ought to honor, in the mad rush to make the season one of spending and of useless giving, as in other ways, we feel that there is danger of having no place for Him in our observance of His birthday. His name should be upon our lips on this day. His spirit should be ours and our gifts should be given in His name.

"Is there room for Him in society when so often the poet's version of it is too nearly true?

"'At the devil's booth all things are sold,
Each ounce of dross costs its ounce
of gold.
For a cap and bells our lives we pay.
'Tis only God that is given away,
'Tis only Heaven may be had for the asking.'

"Yet, too often in our social life we would rather pay the price and leave Christ out. Oh, for the time when we shall all feel that no good gift was ever imparted to man that was not first purchased by the Son of God!

"Is there room for Him in our pleasures? The right answer should settle the question of present situations in our moving picture world If we were to make room for the world's greatest life and let His spirit prompt the trend and spirit of our pleasures things would be more wholesome and hopeful in the great world of pleasure and recreation.

"Is there room for Him in business? There are too few ideals of Christ in the market as there have always been; too many who are saying, "No room for Him."

"In the home and even in the church we cannot meet the test as we ought to meet it. The spirit of Christ, of love and charity, the willingness to follow Him, are not as prevalent as we wish they were. Family worship and the reverent speaking of His name could be more nearly universal in Christian homes.

"All this is true because we have filled and cluttered our lives with other things and our hearts with other people.'

"'Though Christ a thousand times
in Bethlehem be born,
If He's not born in thee, thy soul is all forlorn.'"

The evening service was also permeated with the Christmas spirit. The singing of well-known carols by the choir, with responses by hidden singers and Mrs. Floyd Mercer's song, "The Birthday of the King," was greatly enjoyed. The sermon by the pastor on "If Christ Had Not Been Born, What Then?" painted a dark picture of a Christless world, but showing the reverse side by a catalogue of the marvelous benefits to mankind that have come as a direct result of the Master's words and the teaching and practice of His followers.

"It's awful, Marie, to be married to an aviator. As soon as I mention a new hat, or even if I only express an opinion different from his own, right away he goes up in the Him and letting men see the pow-

THE NAME CALLED WONDERFUL TEXT OF DR. FUNK

Pastor of First Lutheran Describes the Prince of Peace

"The Name Called Wonderful," was the subject for the Christmas sermon by Dr. Funk at the First Lutheran church.

It has always been the custom of peoples and nations to begin numbering the days from the time of some great feast or festival, or from some great event that overshadowed all others in the magnitude of its importance. Thus it has come to pass that you and I, and all the civilized nations of the earth, are reading and writing in every letter, paper and magazine, "A. D. 1922."

Six thousand years ago the first Adam was brought into the world by the creative power of the Almighty. But, alas! Adam fell. For four thousand years, according to the Word of the Lord, the prophet and the priest had proclaimed the messagfe of hope, that God would raise up One who would deliver his people Israel. Thirty-nine books of sacred writ, together with the corroberating evidence of profane history, are filled with prophecies concerning the name, the place and the time for His birth. Not only so, but twenty-seven books abound in overwhelming testimony to the fact that He was born in Bethlehem of Judea, just as the prophets had declared.

At the time of the advent of our Lord the world was in a state of Pagan idolatry; but the remnant of Israel was waiting with great expectation, for the fulness of time had come. Caesar Augustus had given command that all the world should be taxed, every man in his own country. While multitudes are on their way two people, Joseph and Mary, out of the city of Nazareth, are wending their way unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem. And the record is that she brought forth her first born son, and they wrapped Him in swaddling clothes and laid Him in a manger, for there was no room for them in the inn.

Let us observe the humble beginning of our holy religion. Note the humility of the Christ, whom we serve, and whose we are. Even while the infant lay in his mother's arms all the powers of the world, the flesh and the devil were arrayed against him. But that which is deemed the foolishness of God is wiser than the wisdom of men, and at the age of thirty years this carpenter's son appears upon the scene of action and propounds principles that are in direct conflict with the expounders of the law His findings are not those of the Sanhedron, but according to the law of God. For thirty years he had lived in obscurity. He attended no college or university, and yet the wise men marveled at his wisdom and understanding. The Pharisees and the Sadducees, the lawyers and the scribes, were unable to cope with this master mind Moreover the time for establishing the new religion was a miracle of brevity. He is not at all over enthusiastic, and always sane, never erratic. We are told that he dwelt with Simon, a tanner, and that He ate with publicans and sinners. No sword save Peter's, was ever drawn in his defense. Indeed, He overcame the world by the power of a new principle, that of self-renounciation. "His name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father and the Prince of Peace."

FORT GEORGE

Any one who has been to Lake George, N. Y., has missed a great experience if he has not walked over the famous battlefield of the French and Indian war and climbed to the top of the historic Fort George.

A hundred yards or so from the foot of the picturesque lake is the road leading into the battle ground.

First one sees the battle monument which commemorates the alliance between the British and the Indians under Chief Hendrick (King Hendrick) against the French and Indians in the battle of Lake George in 1755. The statue is that of an Englishman and an Indian standing side by side.

Farther up the road one sees little signs, "Rifle Pits," here and there, and another sign, "To the Indian."

Nestled back in the trees is a large and magnificent bronze statue of an Indian leaning forward over an ever-running spring. The palm of his hand is held as if he had just filled it with water for the purpose of quenching his thirst. The statue sends the tourist into a reverie of the days when the red man played such an important part in the strife of two powerful nations.

The large holes in the ground, holes located here and there all around the fort, were the rifle pits and date back to 1759, in the summer of which year General Amherst ordered the erection of the fort. From the road already mentioned one can follow the breastwork on up to the fort. This line of stones is now about a foot and a half high and is somewhat overgrown with grass and shrubs.

Walking up the path from the road a distance of about 200 yards, the fort is reached, now a mound of elevations, hollows, and a deep pit in the center. One wall has been recently reconstructed and stands about twenty-five feet high. The English general Burgoyne occupied this fort during the Revolutionary War.

A new order of things is easily brought about—provided you have telephone connection with your grocer.

It is natural for a cannibal to love his fellow man.

CHRISTMAS AT THE LIBRARY ON SATURDAY

Miss Betty Fell Presides at Childrens Hour

The Christmas holiday was very pleasantly celebrated at the Glendale public library on Harvard street Saturday. In the afternoon Miss Betty Fell presided at the children's story hour, telling a group of Christmas stories. There was a real Christmas tree prettily decorated. A treat of candy canes was given to all of the children present. The young people's room was also decorated with Christmas bells and festoons of green and red.

In the evening the tree was removed to the staff room, where the members of the staff and also several guests indirectly connected with the library, enjoyed a Christmas party and exchanged gifts. Those present included Mrs. J. C. Danford, librarian; Miss Laura Roberts, Miss Kate L. Frost, Miss Eloise Francy, Miss Eva Garton, Miss Lula Garton, Miss Jewell Cole, Miss Laura Wilford Brown, Miss Edna M. Platt, Mrs. C. L. Drake, William C. Dryer, J. C. Danford, Miss Marjorie Watkins and Mrs. Jessie L. McCracken.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Box A—Mrs. T. Whiffenpoor Oscarbilt and her boy husband, Mr. and Mrs. R. Dudbadubb Dodo and the Misses Sarah, Hortense and Magnolia Dodo, Mr. and Mrs. Dodo's three dashing daughters, who have just finished a term at Mrs. Pettiduck's School for Incorrigibles at Woodfern-by-the-Sea. Mrs. Whiffenpoor wore her usual rigid expression and a stunning gown of silk smeared with beads, beer stains and thingabobs. She was heavily draped in the Oscarbilt jewels, and looked very much like the larger of the four hanging chandeliers at the Penn Station. Her husband looked less intelligent than when last heard from.

Mrs. Dodo was a study in clashing colors, and spent the intermission fighting with her husband, who, despite his great wealth and social position, still insists upon drinking out of a glass bottle in public.

The Misses Dodo carried a bag of peanuts each, munched with animation, and threw the shucks over the railing.

Box B—Mme. Vladimir Vodka-Vodka and Grodovicht, her half-baked son; Dr. and Mrs. Northumberland of Liverpool; Judge and Mrs. P. O. Brian and daughter Anastasia, accompanied by her second lieutenant. Mrs. Vodka-Vodka was one of the Smart Set in Russia under the old regime, but is merely one of the Rubberset today. She was once of the most beautiful women in Moscow and has old-time photographs to prove her contention. Dr. and Mrs. Northumberland are very prominent English visitors to this country, in fact, the doctor's position is such in Liverpool that he is known as one of the Liverpool "docs."

Judge and Mrs. P. O. Brian will be remembered by old-timers as answering to the names of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick O'Brien before the judge went into politics and cleaned up beautifully. The judge is a great lover of the opera, as a darkened box gives him a great opportunity to chew plug tobacco unseen.

Box C—Admiral Q. Hooker Walrus, U. S. N., R. F. D., C. O. D., and Mrs. Hooker, F. O. B, attracted much attention in this box, the admiral being slightly over-ginned. He insisted upon putting one leg over the rail of the famous horseshoe circle and whistling at Mme. Marie Jeritza. The admiral wore a costume of navy blue dotted with gold buttons with toupe to match. Mrs. Walrus was encased in a peculiar material of velvet and lace that cost at least $8 a square yard, delivered at the gate. The admiral kept pounding on the rail with a flask of hammered-brass and demanding "more jazz."

Box D—Mrs. John D. Irondog, wife of the millionaire nutpick magnate; Countess Della Parchesa of Venice and Hoboken; Mrs. Percival Babbitt, wife of the Jersey City horseradish king, and Misses Mamie and Annie Babbitt, her impossible daughters.

Mrs. Irondog was attired in a gown of Scotch plaid with a girdle of barbed wire and wore her famous Coronation goloshes. Along about midnight she succeeded in discovering what opera was being given and why.

Countess Parchesa wore a business suit of axminster studded with carpet tacks. She has freckled noticeably since she was last seen in this country.

Mrs. Babbitt was all dressed up like a Polish bride, and carried in a large tin boiler over $400,000 worth of diamonds and Lehigh Valley Egg No. 2, presented to her by her husband last summer. The Babbit girls looked as distressing to the eye as ever, and giggled with old-time abandon.

Box E—This box was occupied exclusively by Mrs. I. Canby Nawfulnest and her son, Master Ogden Nawfulpest. Ogden has to have a lot of room, and it was a question at first whether to let him see the opera from a box or a box-stall. Mrs. Nawfulpest wore a gown of blue organdie over seven drops of juniper juice, and carried a great responsibility when she let her son in the theatre. He spent the evening trying to build a fire under the seats, imitating the sounds of birds and doing other things taught him by the Boy Scouts. He expressed disappointment with the opera, "La Boheme," because there were no elephants or trained seals in it. After the performance Mrs. Nawfulpest received a petition from people in nearby boxes asking that she chloroform the lad at her earliest convenience.

STANFORD READY FOR PITTSBURGH PANTHERS

Hard Fought Game Is Expected on Dec. 30 at University

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Dec. 25.—On Saturday next the Pittsburgh Panther will stalk into the Stanford stadium to do battle with the Stanford Indian in the first of two great east-west games that will ring down the curtain on a long and brilliant Pacific coast football season.

The interesting feature of this game is that both teams have shown a wonderful game to game development, both starting the season with defeats, and both showing remarkable improvement each week until, at the end of the regular season, both were formidable machines capable of showing well against any teams in the country.

Pitt ended its eastern season with an impressive victory over Penn State, which will play in Pasadena on New Year's day. Stanford played its last conference game, holding the great California Bears in the second half to only one touchdown, two unfavorable breaks, plus an inability to cope with the California passing game being the reason for California's winning margin.

Glenn Warner, Pitt coach, will bring west one of the best back fields in the country with Holleran, Flanagan, Anderson, and Hewitt. Captain Tommy Holleran is the strategist, Flanagan and Anderson are fast, shifty halves. While Hewitt, weighing 230 pounds, has all the drive and speed of California's famous "Duke" Morrison.

The Stanford backfield is hardly comparable to the Pitt quartet but it is consistently good. The Cardinal line, however, should be slightly superior to the Panthers' forwards. It has a weight advantage and charges low and hard.

The Warner machine is one with a great deal of brute strength, the final punch centering in Hewitt, who is called time after time to make the necessary distance on fourth down.

With Coach Kerr improving the Stanford defense against passes the Cards should be able to hold the Panthers fairly even. Breaks may have much to do with the result. Stanford has had the advantage of almost none this year, but the whole team will be watching Hewitt whose one bad habit is a tendency to fumble. If he drops the ball next Saturday, Stanford is going to have eleven men there to recover.

LOCAL NEWS OF BURBANK

Mrs. Lewis will entertain friends from Los Angeles at dinner on Christmas day.

Miss Ruth Spafford and mother of Glendale attended the entertainment at the Presbyterian church last Friday evening.

Mrs. Ervin and son, Dr. V. P. Ervin will spend Christmas with Mrs. Rainwater in Los Angeles.

Mr. J. J. Bailey will spent Christmas with his mother, Mrs. Helen Bailey, on Olive avenue. His sister, Cleo Madison, will also be there. "The Dangerous Age," now playing at the Kinema in Los Angeles is starring Miss Madison. We are proud of all our friends who do things worth while.

Mrs. Stella Ervin will chaperone the Christian Endeavorers on their hike up Mt., Wilson Tuesday, Dec. 26th. They will leave the Presbyterian church at four o'clock in the morning.

Miss Anita Nolan of San Francisco, and Mr. Claude Gilbert of Burbank will be dinner guests of Mrs. Radcliff of Glendale on Christmas day. Miss Nolan will travel a thousand miles to eat dinner with Mr. Gilbert. It would be nice if he would keep her here.

Mr. and Mrs. Burkett and Mr. Eridenstien of Brawley will be at the home of Mrs. F. Petty on Verdugo road for dinner, Christmas day.

Richard Cline and Fred Carlson are both ill. Their friends wish them a Merry Christmas and a Happy, Well New Year.

Mrs. Jager, who has been in the Cottage hospital has returned to her home.

LAST CHANCE TO HEAR FAMOUS SINGERS

Wednesday evening at the First Methodist church will be the last opportunity to hear the Oliphant Sisters. These two sisters have sung all over the world and have been very successful in pointing many to the Better Way.

Miss Minnie Oliphant is a forceful speaker. She is editor of the Every Woman magazine.

CHEER FOR THE DESTITUTE

In the dining room of the Santa Rosa, Mrs. Clark has been busily packing boxes of food for the forty-seven needy families of Burbank. She has been assisted by the ladies of the Philanthropy committee of the Burbank Woman's club.

The money which paid for the food came from the policemen, who gave a dance last Wednesday for the benefit of the poor kiddies.

FLYING SQUADRON IN BURBANK FOR THREE DAYS

At the Friat Methodist church next Friday evening will be given a lecture by Hon. Frank S. Regan, who is a tax expert. The Boy Scouts have left a slip of paper at every door in Burbank telling of the coming of the Flying Squadron. Do not destroy these slips, but keep them to remind you to be at the church at 2:30 and 7:30 next Friday evening.

'GLORY TO GOD' TEXT SECRET OF HAPPY LIFE

Rev. Edmonds Preaches Power Sermon Sunday at Presbyterian

Sunday morning at the Presbyterian church the pastor, Rev. W. E. Edmonds, after calling attention to the article by Charlotte Perkins Gilman in a recent number of the Literary Digest, "The Degradation of Christmas," preached as follows:

"Glory to God." (Luke, 2:14.) This text is the secret of a happy life. It is the guarantee of success, and the believer's watchword; the answer to every question; and our assurance of sonship. It is our hope of heaven. Whatsoever e do, do all to the glory of God. Here is a text that simply settles everything.

"The glory of God is the supreme aim and purpose of the angels. Isaiah heard them, 'Holy, holy, holy is the Lord of hosts: the whole earth is full of His glory.' And in Revelation the angels join with the redeemed, 'Blessing and honor, and glory, and power, be unto Him that sitteth upon the throne.' The angel who, hovering over Bethlehem's shepherds, announced 'unto you is born this day a Savior,' was followed by a multitude of the heavenly host, praising God and saying Glory to God!'

"The glory of God was, above all else, the design in Christ's incarnation. There is danger that we glorify the day but not the Christ, and have a Christmas without a Christ. God did become man, taking upon Himself our nature, that we through faith in Him might be clothed upon with His righteousness. Too good to be true, but it is. The glory of Christ's holiness, His wisdom, His goodness—such clothed Him even under the trials of humanity.

"How shall we glorify God? Let us be very simple and get down to every-day living. In business, social life, amusement—will this or that please and glorify our Lord? Let us seek His counsel in every plan and purpose. We shall glorify Him by constant recognition and constant dependence.

"We will best glorify God by letting Him glorify Himself in us. We cannot add anything to His majesty and greatness, but we can acknowledge them. And we can let Him enter into us and shine forth from us; 'Let your light so shine.' Paul said that those who witnessed His wonderful conversion 'glorified God in me.' Men of today can glorified God in me.' Men of today can glorify God by surrendering to air."

er of His grace to save and keep, and to give grace and fortitude. We will glorify God not by showing how strong or holy we are, but what He can do with poor weak mortals. Are we thus glorifying God? Are we taking all He has to give and showing it forth The world will not read the Bible, but us.

"But the glory that God is preparing for us must begin in us, in our earthly experience. The Lord will give grace and glory. The glory comes through the grace and must begin here below. The apostle tells us the secret. 'Christ in you, the hope of glory. Whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God.'

"'Glory to God in the highest!'"

The County Court judge had retired at last after a long and unpopular career, but there were sufficient false flatterers among the lawyers practicing before him to propose a testimonial. They sent around to a young lawyer who had no false politeness to waste and asked him for a subscription. His reply was as follows:

"Gentlemen: I am afraid I cannot send you anything for the purpose you indicate in your letter. Please put me down, however, for a handsome donation toward a wreath when it shall be required."

THE OVERTURE OF ANGELS THEME OF DR. RASMUS

Upon Luke 2:12, 13, He Tells of the Heavenly Host

The theme for Dr. Rasmus' sermon at the First Methodist Episcopal Church Sunday was "The Overture of Angels." The text, Luke 2:12, 13, "And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God and saying Glory to God in the Highest, and on earth peace and good will to men."

Dr. ...ous said in part: "The two unrivalled events of human history are the Cradle of Bethlehem, and the Cross of Calvary. The gate by which Jesus entered into the world was as wonderful as the gate by which He left the world. The eyes of the world are turned towards the thought, and the worship of men ih centered today upon the spot where this most notable event in human history occurred. To this shrine came the beauty of angel overture. The two features of that overture are, recognition of God, 'Glory to God in the Highest,' and a benediction wish to humanity, 'On earth peace and good will towards men.'

Jesus in the highest sense was the gift of God's love. Through that stable gateway has come more blessings to the human race than have ever been celebrated in the songs and sermons of men. To forget God as the author of everything that is beautiful in human history is to express the basest ingratitude of man.

"Peace on earth! Will that ever come, this dream of sane men and women? Will the nations of earth some day stack their arms while the dove builds its nest in the cannon's mouth? Certain it is that this will never be until men shall give Him His rightful place in the councils of the world who said, 'My peace I give unto you, not as the world giveth give I unto you.'

"Good will towards men! Can this universal dream by realized? Not until hate shall have perished everywhere and racial prejudice passed from the earth. This too can only be the heritage of man when the desire of all nations shall have His way among the races of the earth.

"So more beautiful than aught else in this Overture of Angels was the recognition of Jesus as the Savior and Lord of Men. 'Behold I bring you glad tidings of great joy for unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior which is Christ the Lord!' In Him came the cure for humanity's universal ills. Sin's remedy. He came to bring. The victory over death He came to proclaim. The summer of His power shall yet make glad and beautiful the ends of the earth."

IOWANS CALLED TO BIG DINNER ON DEC. 28

The dinner time for the Iowans, residents or visiting, is at hand. Few of us remember the incident but we have read that on December 28th, 1846, Iowa joined the Union. The Iowa Association of Southern California will hold its annual Admission Day dinner, reception and reunion at the Union League club, Thursday, December 28, 1922. The Union League club rooms are at the corner of Hill and Third streets.

All Iowans, including visitors and tourists, are invited for this delightful occasion. Our get-acquainted hour will be from six to seven o'clock. There will be room to make this a very enjoyable feature, so come early. Dinner will be served at 7 o'clock sharp, $1.50 per plate. There will be special tables for towns, clubs or colleges if they make arrangements in advance. Col. John J. Steadman and Judge Charles S. Crail will be among our speakers.

Each one is asked to pass the news to the others. All newcomers will be glad to learn of the opportunity. Following the dinner there will be a fine program of addresses and music. President A. B. Shaw will preside and will be in charge.

Please note this! We must know in advance the number of plates desired and we must give orders for same with guarantee. If ordered they must be paid. We must know Wednesday morning the 27th, but please respond earlier if you can. Please telephone or write to Secretary C. H. Parsons, at the home of the Iowa Association, Continental National bank, Ninth and Main streets, phone 10261.

President A. B. Shaw, F. H. True, Fred H. Taft, Joe S. Crail, committee.

FAMILY BOARDS IN EAGLE ROCK ARE CROWDED

Many Gather in Family Reunions in Bird City

Many families of Eagle Rock assembled in large numbers around the board, following the unwritten law that Christmas is the time for family reunions.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Wisdom of 127 S. Royal Drive began the day with a tempting Christmas breakfast, following the Christmas tree which was lit in the early morning. As guests over the holidays, Mr. and Mrs. Wisdom are entertaining Mrs. Wisdom's mother, Mrs. E. A. Renert, and her sister, Mrs. Bob Wilson, and husband of Hollywood; her brother, J. N. Fullenwrider of San Diego, and Mr. Wisdom's brother, Attorney Earl L. Wisdom of Los Angeles. This afternoon the entire party started on a motor trip of several days to San Diego.

Places were laid for twelve at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Young, where another family reunion is taking place. Mr. and Mrs. James D. Horton and Dr. and Mrs. N. B. Ackley of Montana, cousins to Mrs. Young, who are building a home in Eagle Rock at the head of Douglas avenue, are among those present.

Sunday evening a genuine Christmas party was given at the Young residence for the children of the neighborhood, the guests numbering 25 to 30 in all. A beautiful Christmas tree was ready to meet the delighted gaze and all manner of Christmas dainties were served.

The home of A. T. Taylor, 850 South Townsend is the scene of much merrymaking today. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor were host and hostess to their children and grandchildren, who are Mr. and Mrs. Horace Taylor, and their daughter, Mrs. Murray Black, and husband, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Taylor of Los Angeles, who is a prominent mining engineer of the West, and their 10-year-old son, Arthur T. Taylor.

A family group of 16 is being entertained at the home of Mrs. J. Hartley Taylor of 811 W. Colorado. Beautiful Christmas decorations and delightful confections added much to the holiday atmosphere.

PEARL YOUNG IS HIT DURING HER DAY IN COURT

Appears Before Judge at Eagle Rock and Wins Many Hearts

After Pearl Young, starring with Choice Productions, had left the Eagle Rock court Saturday morning, having paid a $5 fine, reduced from $20, it being almost Christmas, she was unanimously voted by the court and press as the prettiest woman speedster to be tried in Eagle Rock.

Pearl Young, whose case was continued from last week, as she was out on location at Balboa last Saturday, found that this delay had saved her $15, as the show of leniency upon the part of his honor during the holidays decreed.

"How fast were you running?" asked his honor.

"Well, my speedometer wasn't running and I guess the officer has it right."

"How much faster was she going than her speedometer, then?" asked his honor of Officer Harry Williams.

"Thirty-three miles faster than her speedometer," said Mr. Williams.

Pearl Young then told the judge that someone had told her that Eagle Rock was a short cut to Hollywood, and he replied that it was. She explained that she had never been in this locality before, but was coming from Pasadena. It was when coasting down the hill in the vicinity of the Eagle Rock bridge that the officers caught her.

"Eagle Rock may be a short cut to Hollywood for some people, but it wasn't for me. I don't know how I got lost, but presently I found myself down on North Broadway, and not on the road to Hollywood after all."

Miss Young wore a moss fur trimmed green duvetyne dress, not "too long," and a black velvet hat that served to enhance her charms. At the City Hall they are still talking about her smiles with which she was generous, especially when she found that her fine was $5 instead of $20.

HURLBURT HOME IS SCENE OF JOLLY PARTY

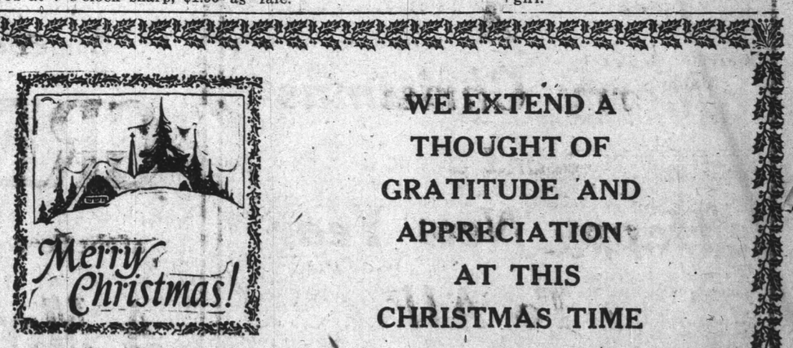
The home of E. C. Hurlbert on 348 West Park avenue is the scene of a week-end Christmas party, which began with the lighting of a Christmas tree and distribution of gifts Sunday night and will be continued today with a big Christmas dinner at which covers will be laid for Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Brach of Portland, Oregon, parents of the hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pollard of Portland, sister and brother-in-law of the hostess and their family, J. J. Hurlbert and family of Hollywood, Mrs. Henderson, sister of the hostess and her family; Mrs. Charles Brawley of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Vincent of Glendale, son-in-law and daughter of the host and hostess, and the other children of the family—June Hurlbert, Harold, Russell and Dale Hurlbert.

Tom (who has been away) — "Did you and that girl to whom you were engaged last summer get married?"

Jack—"Yes; but we are not living together."

"Why, what's the trouble?"

"Oh, no trouble at all. She married another man and I another girl."



WE EXTEND A THOUGHT OF GRATITUDE AND APPRECIATION AT THIS CHRISTMAS TIME to the buying public of Glendale who have made it possible to give Glendale a store for the people, and to start 1923 with the erection of a new and modern store building in which it will be possible to expand our business with the growth of Glendale.

We appreciate your loyal support and shall endeavor the coming year to give you a better store. Growth means progress. Sincerely,

H. S. WEBB & CO.

DON'T MISS IT!

COMING OF WISE MEN TOLD BY DR. WINNARD

The old story of the coming of the wise men of the east, was the theme of the sermon yesterday of Dr. Winnard, at the Tropico Presbyterian church. He said in part:

"'And when they found Him they opened their treasurers and presented unto Him gifts.' (Matt. 2:11).

"Who these wise men were, whence they came, how long they stayed, or whither they departed are matters largely of conjecture. But what they did when they had found their Lord has not been left to our imagination, for the text states that they presented unto Him gifts.

"Christmas time is gift time. And we check up our lists to see that no one whom we especially wish to remember has been forgotten. Let us not overlook the fact that there is one Friend who is more than all else to us. And let us see to it that He receives all that His blessed friendship merits.

"And first of all let us make Him a gift of love. If we fully realize what it means in John 3:16 there is nothing that we will withhold from Him. But without Love it will be impossible to please Him. Love must be an active agent in all our gifts. But especially so in that which we give to our Lord and Master.

"And we must give Him our money, or that for which our money stands—our possessions. Why do they sometimes call the man who solicits funds for Christian enterprises a "church beggar" when in reality he is one that puts before you an opportunity of serving God in a very practical way. Our money of today is ourself of yesterday and in giving of our money we are in a large way giving of ourselves to Him.

"A third gift we should present unto Him is that of our service. The wise men found opportunity to give directly to our Lord. It is ours to give to Him through others. 'Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto Me.' We hear much about 'service' these days. May I ask what kind of service you are giving to your Lord?

"There is no more appropriate time to check up on this matter than just now and see if we are withholding from Him that which we should gladly give Him as 'our reasonable service.'"

Dr. Winnard closed his sermon with the story of "The Other Wise Man" as illustrative of the manifold opportunities we have of serving our fellow man and indirectly serving Christ.

OLD SANTA

By BERYL ELOISE BROWN
(Age 10 Years) 171 N. Eagledale Ave., Eagle Rock

There's a day set aside in the winter,
When the lakes are all a'flinter,
And the snow is drifting all the day—
When comes old Santa with his sleigh!

On the wings of the sky, he comes,
His sleigh overflowing with dolls and drums,
And overhanging the sides are candy canes,
And little toy horses with long, silky manes.

He comes, he comes, through the cloudless sky,
Prancing and whistling forever on high.
Now he alights on the top of a house.
And creeps down the chimney as still as a mouse.

To each little boy he gives a drum,
A wagon, a bat, a ball and some gum;
To each little girl a set of dishes,
A big baby doll and whatever she wishes.

And then he rises and flies away,
But he'll be back next Christmas day.
So for old Santa let's give three cheers!
For he'll be back in later years.

EAGLE ROCK IS REPRESENTED ABROAD

Many Go Visiting Friends and Relatives Elsewhere

Now that the big day has arrived, everyone in Eagle Rock is interested to know what everyone else is doing to make the holiday one of cheer and happiness. While the home firesides claim the greatest popularity, yet many are spending today with friends or relatives outside the city.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Weir and daughter, Catherine, of 260 N. Kenilworth, are in Hollywood today, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morell Law.

Raymond Church of the Holly Motor Sales Inc., is spending the day in Alhambra with friends, and K. F. McCrary, manager of the Eagle Rock branch of the Holly firm, is dining with friends in Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. George Van Sands have been invited to the home of Mrs. Van Sands' aunt, Mrs. Harry Aiken, and husband, at Whittier.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson E. Bliss are in Long Beach for the day, as the guests of Mrs. Hugh Murray, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bailey of 250 N. Kenilworth are spending the day with relatives in Los Angeles.

Neil Sprinkle is visiting today in San Diego.

A large group of relatives composed of Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Blumer of N. Castle, Mr. and Mrs. Mills B. Clapp, and Mr. Clapp's mother, Mrs. Howard B. Mills of Los Angeles, and Mr. and Mrs. H. L. McConnell, of Long Beach, and the children of each family are taking Christmas dinner in Sierra Madre today.

MONTE VISTA IS RE-DECORATED FOR CHILDREN

Children to Occupy Buildings Today and Tomorrow

The redecorating of Monte Vista Home for Undernourished Children of Los Angeles county has been completed and the children will again be occupying the building there today or tomorrow. It is planned to have the Christmas tree and celebration on Wednesday or Thursday, according to Mrs. R. W. Meeker, chariman of the Glendale committee of women who had charge of furnishing several of the rooms when the home first opened up.

The "potato shower" given by the children attending the matinee performance at the T. D. & L. theater Saturday afternoon netted about twenty-five sacks of choice potatoes, according to Manager Allan, which will go to the home. The Russell Grocery store took up a collection of forty-five pounds of candy, forty pounds of nuts and between fifteen and twenty pounds of cookies for the children's Christmas celebration. Toys and fruit cake as the gift of Mrs. E. C. Pendroy of Pendroy's department store will further the happiness of the little tots.

DUSTIN FARNUM TALKS OF THE PUBLIC TASTE

Dustin Farnum's long experience as a star in pictures gives authority to all he says on the subject of the silent drama. His utterances are not theories but facts. What he says about public taste is especially interesting in view of his latest picture, "The Trail of the Axe," which is announced by the United Theatre, Eagle Rock, for two days beginning tonight.

"My friends have asked me more than once why I continue to appear in straight-from-the-shoulder stories rather than so-called psychological pictures," says Mr. Farnum, "and I always give the same answer: 'People like them.'

"The picture-going public is a multitude with many tastes, but I think it can be divided into two general groups—one that likes what I call sophisticated stories and another that enjoys stories along direct lines, acted in a positive manner by artists who project their meaning without hesitation—quickly, sharply.

Eagle Rock Personals

Mrs. Jesse H. Taylor of 210 W. Myrtle, who has been undergoing medical care at the Glendale sanitarium is reported to be improving nicely. Several weeks ago Mrs. Taylor suffered a serious nervous breakdown, but is now on the road to recovery.

Sergeant T. B. Rose from Fort McArthur is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Sexton, 810 Belleview Avenue, for the holidays.

Mrs. Morgan Marmaduke of Ellis Court has returned from her visit to Topeka, Kansas, and is spending Christmas at her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Meyers of Ellis Court have as their house guest during the holidays, Mrs. Jennie Krieger of Long Beach.

William Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse H. Taylor of 210 W. Myrtle, is home for three days from Stanford University where he is in his senior year. He was a captain of the cadets at the Glendale Union High School, where he attended before entering college.

LINT

"Lint—that collects
Where one least expects."

JIGGS' HOLIDAY LAMENT

Jolly old Saint Nicholas
Lean your ear this way;
Don't you tell a single soul
What I'm going to say.

Maggie wants a rolling pin,
Dinty wants corned beef,
Now if you will do just this
I'll feel a great relief.

Give my Mag her rolling pin,
But not one made of wood,
Then when I get in too late
It won't do any good.

But Dinty needs some more corned beef,
The whole gang's to be there,
I'm going to borrow some old clothes
And dye my carrot hair.

I only need to dye my hair
She won't know me from Adam,
My features never look the same
If they're not patched now, they've had 'em.

P. S.—See you at Dinty's.

Little Johnny says that after Christmas dinner he knows how to sympathize with the over-stuffed furniture.

TRAGEDY

A sad little group gathered around the Christmas dinner table. There was the usual cranberry sauce, pickles, mince pie, fruit cake, et cetera, but no central figure graced the board.

Early that morning Turkey Gobler met sudden death at the hands of an ax, which "axidentally" fell on his neck. His remains were cremated.

In other words, the new cook found a generous sized can tied to her, as odoriferous fumes permeated the atmosphere.
